SPRING
1928

BOX 444

Lock Haven, Penna.

Spring 1928

This modest little catalogue does not contain everything that grows but we do claim that in its pages you will find the varieties that are worth while. As our stock increases we intend to adhere to this policy of worth while plants. Plants that are worthy of a place in any garden. As we try them out and prove their worth we will add the best of the new introductions. Some you will find listed here, notably the New Hardy Asters, Scabiosas, Lupins, and we may add our specialty—Hybrid Delphiniums. A trial will convince you of the merits of these Delphiniums and other plants mentioned.

We list a few selected annuals, including the Salvia Splendens Parma-Violet Acubaefolia. This as we have flowered it here should prove a very welcome addition to our summer blooming plants.

While we exercise the greatest possible care in sending out only best quality stock and true to name, we will not be held responsible for failures, such as may be caused by wrong methods of planting and treatment, and while we will gladly replace anything where the fault lies with us, it is understood that we will not be responsible for any further claim than the value of the item in question.

Orders from unknown parties must be accompanied by cash or suitable references. We do not make any C. O. D. shipments. Orders will be sent out as soon as possible in their season unless a certain time of delivery is stipulated by the customer. All orders shipped by Express collect. Orders wanted by parcel post please include postage. We make no charge for boxes or packing.

Novelty

NEW SALVIA SPLENDENS. PARMA VIOLET

Introduced for the first time, this new Salvia from England is sure to be welcomed by all lovers of garden plants. As the name suggests, the flowers are a beautiful Parma Violet shade, while the plant, which is strong and robust, has yellow spotted leaves. Under ordinary cultivation it grows about two feet high and the flowers are produced freely throughout the summer.

35 cents each. $3.50 per dozen
